Design that shows quality

From the entrance area to the top floor, guests notice every detail. With flexyPage displays, you can also make a statement of style and quality in the elevator. Your content appears in the look of your company: colors, fonts, logo—everything fits harmoniously into your corporate design. The result? A consistently professional appearance that strengthens your brand and builds trust.

Guidance instead of queries

Where is the spa? When does the shuttle leave? On which floor is breakfast served? With flexyPage, you can display information exactly where your guests need it: directly in the elevator, in the lobby, or on the way to their room. Whether event notices, floor directories, or opening hours—all content can be updated centrally and in real time. This improves orientation and reduces inquiries at reception.
